In front of the Sydney Hospital stands a bronze boar that was a gift made to the City of Sydney in 1968 by Marchese Faschi Torrigiani of Florence. The snout of 'Il Porcellino' shines brightly from being rubbed for good luck. Clarissa Faschi Torrigiani donated the sculpture in the memory of her father Dr. Thomas Faschi and her brother Dr. Piero Faschi, both of whom worked as surgeons at the hospital